Phelps sits about 15 miles northeast of Eagle River, Wisconsin, tucked into the heart of Vilas County. With just over 1,500 residents, this charming Northwoods community is embraced by the sprawling 650,000-acre Chequamegon-Nicolet National Forest, which covers nearly three-quarters of the township. Just two miles to the north, the Ottawa National Forest stretches into Michigan's Upper Peninsula, adding even more wilderness to explore.

Here, nature truly takes center stage: 41 sparkling lakes, 37,716 acres of room to roam, 1,395 miles of scenic trails, and 40 miles dedicated to snowmobiling. And while the outdoor offerings are vast, the warm, welcoming spirit of the people is what makes Phelps one of Wisconsin's friendliest small towns.

Whether you're seeking an unforgettable four-season playground for every kind of outdoor adventure or a tight-knit community to call home, Phelps invites you to discover the best of both worlds.
